Process

There are several options available to employees who take parental leave. One or more of the following steps may apply, depending on the employee's circumstances.

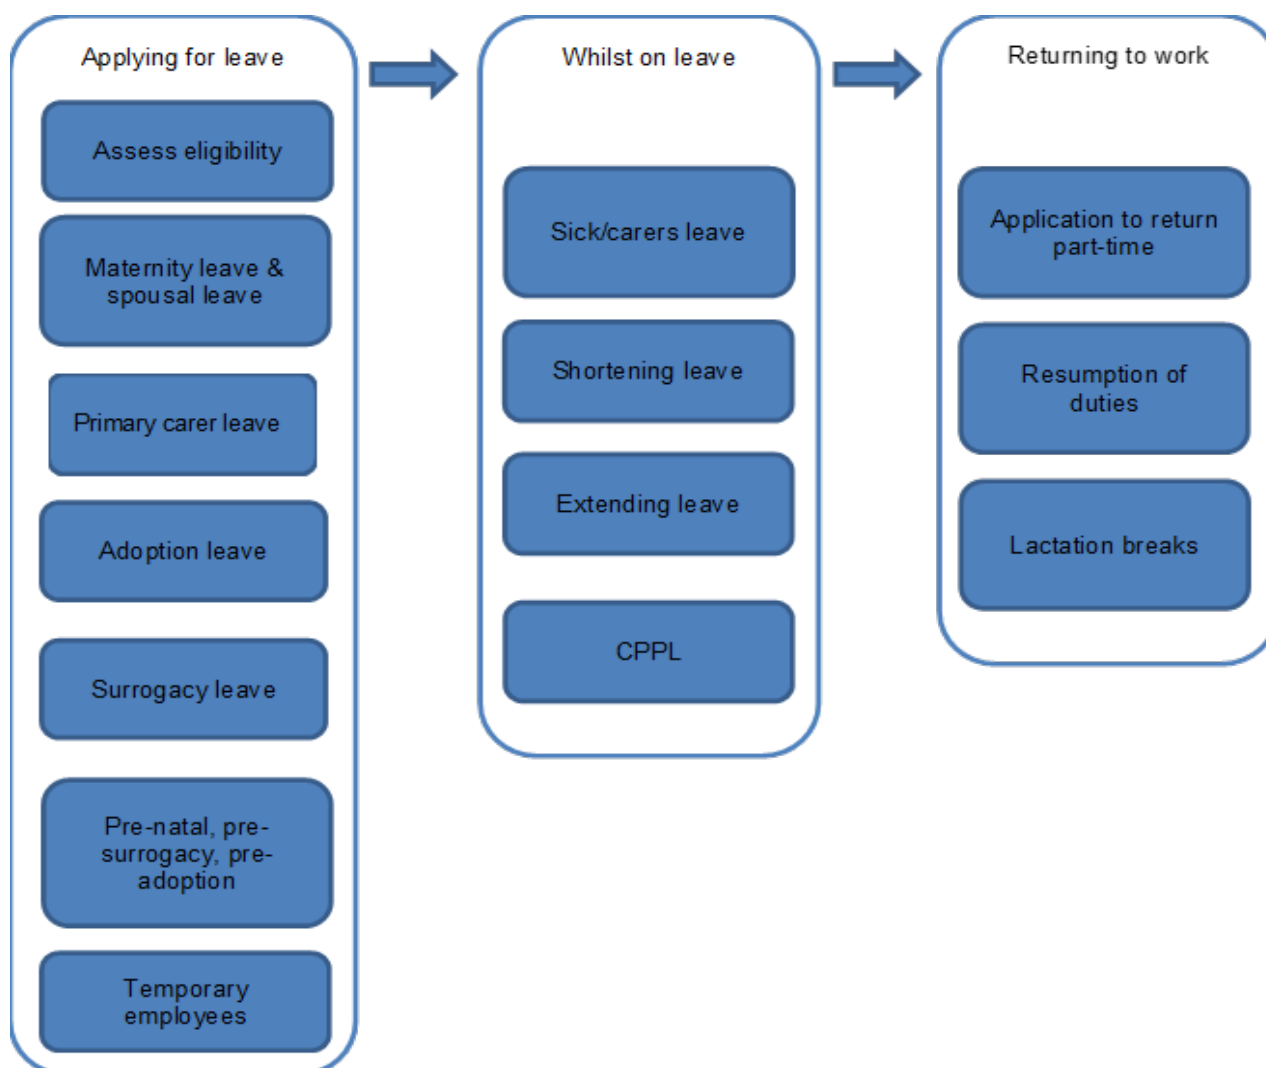

Image 1 Parental leave process

1. Assess eligibility

Employee to self-assess their eligibility for parental leave prior to applying.

Paid and unpaid leave - The qualifying service period for paid parental leave is at least 12 months continuous service in any one or more Queensland government departments or Queensland public service offices. This service is to be unbroken or may be inclusive of paid and unpaid leave which is credited towards service. In determining an employee's qualifying service period, please also refer to Directive 12/18 - Recognition of Previous Service, section 8.1.

The qualifying service period need only be met once in an employee's period of continuous service.

The qualifying period is nullified where there is a break in service, which is not recognised for long service leave and sick leave accrual purposes (e.g. extended leave such as sick or special leave, ceasing employment), as outlined in Directive 12/18 - Recognition of Previous Service and Directive 01/19 - Leave without Salary Credited as Service.

In determining the qualifying service period for a part-time employee, the passage of time and not the completion of equivalent hours will be used.

An employee who has not met the qualifying service period for paid parental leave (maternity, adoption, spousal or surrogacy) may still be entitled to unpaid parental leave.

Employees ineligible to apply for paid parental leave include:

- short term casual employees
- employees who are solely remunerated by fees, allowances or commission
- employees who are on unauthorised absence immediately before the start of the paid leave period
- employees who do not have a period of unbroken employment of at least 12 months.

An employee on unpaid leave, who falls pregnant, is eligible to apply for a further period of paid parental leave.

2. Application for maternity leave and spousal leave (paid and unpaid)

- Employees may apply to have their maternity leave / spousal leave taken at half pay.

Timing

- An employee must commence paid maternity leave at least 6 weeks prior to the expected date of confinement or from the premature birth of a child (whichever is sooner).
- However, if an employee wishes to commence maternity leave less than 6 weeks prior to the expected date of confinement, the employee must provide to their manager/principal/supervisor or the appropriate delegated officer supporting medical documentation citing their fitness for duty, including the date up to which they are able to work.
- Inform your manager/principal/supervisor of your intention to take maternity or spousal leave at least 10 weeks in advance of the intended start date.

Paid maternity leave is deemed to commence from the soonest of the following dates:

- the date that the employee seeks to commence maternity leave
- the date at which the doctor's certificate indicates the employee is unfit to work
- the child's date of birth.

The employee may then defer taking maternity leave until:

- the day specified in the medical certificate; or
- 14 days after the Director-General (or delegate) revokes the decision to defer maternity leave (with medical evidence the delegate may approve the deferral of maternity leave); or
- the employee commences maternity leave; or
- the day of the employee's expected date of confinement.

Whichever happens first. Adjustments to maternity leave dates can be managed through the leave application process detailed below.

 - if a pregnant employee accesses their entitlements to paid pre-natal leave during their temporary engagement, they may be considered eligible to access paid parental leave.

- Manager, principals and supervisors or delegated officer must approve or reject the application for parental leave, providing advice to the temporary employee within 14 days of application.

Employees may choose to avail themselves of accrued leave entitlements after a period of unpaid parental leave provided that the overall length of leave does not exceed the allowed parental leave period.

Manager, principal or supervisor

- Assist the employee with their application by providing the following details:
 - date of commencement with department
 - Department of Education ABN (see CPPL Information sheet (DoE employees only))

12. Application to return to work on a part time basis

- The employee must complete and provide to their manager, principal or supervisor the Application and agreement form – part time work arrangements after returning from parental leave at least 7 weeks before the leave ends. The employee's written application is to include:
 - the period of employment the employee wishes to work on a part-time basis
 - the impact a refusal to approve the application might have on the employee and the employee's dependents.

Please note: an application to return to work on a part-time basis after a period of parental leave cannot extend beyond the day the child in relation to whom parental leave was taken is required to be enrolled for compulsory schooling under the Education (General Provisions) Act 2006 (Qld). After this stage, any requests for part time work should be managed as a flexible work arrangement. The manager, principal, supervisor or appropriate delegated officer considers the application for return to work on a part-time basis and the available options to support the employee to return to work in a part time capacity. These considerations may include but are not limited to:

- Operational requirements, including allocation of workloads and employment arrangements of the work unit
- Financial concerns, such as any additional costs that may be incurred by the arrangement
- The employee's circumstances, including their skills and supervisory responsibilities, and their role as their child's caregiver.

For guidance on what to consider in relation to a part-time work request, please see the Assessing requests to work part-time – Manager information.

- Where an application is unable to be accommodated, the manager, principal or supervisor should contact their HR Business Partner to seek advice, prior to responding to an employee.
- The manager, principal, supervisor or appropriate delegated officer advises the employee of a decision to approve or refuse within 14 days after receiving the application.
- On approval of the part time return to work arrangement:
 - the agreement is documented using the Application and agreement – part-time work arrangements after returning from parental leave form including review dates and/or end date
 - the employee completes an appointment and roster variation form (DoE employees only) and submits to Payroll Services for processing.

 - that if the employee worked part-time or was transferred to a safe job because of the pregnancy before starting maternity leave, they return to the position held immediately prior to starting part-time work or transfer to a safe job
 - that if the employee's position no longer exists, but there are other positions available that the employee is qualified for and capable of performing, the employee is entitled to be employed in a position that is, as closely as possible, comparable in status and remuneration to that of the employee's former position
 - that the position to which the employee is entitled to is available to the employee
 - that if the employee is a long term casual whose hours were reduced because of the pregnancy before starting maternity leave, the employer must restore the employee's hours to hours equivalent to those worked immediately before the hours were reduced.

Lactation breaks

In accordance with the PSC Breastfeeding and work policy, an employee has the right to request lactation breaks to breastfeed and/or express.

The employee and their manager, principal or supervisor should negotiate and agree the timing of lactation breaks, allowing the flexibility needed to breastfeed or express milk. In doing so, consideration should be given to reasonable work unit needs with a focus on minimising disruption to the workplace and service delivery.

Appeals

In accordance with the provisions outlined in section 194 of the Public Service Act 2008 (Qld), an employee may appeal a decision not to approve leave or a part-time working arrangement in the Queensland Industrial Relations Commission (QIRC).
